- Estimated production guide number– your individual Camaro production guide number for the first few months of production will be displayed in the “Distribution” section of the 2010 Camaro Web site

The production guide was developed based on two factors: (1) On your Chevrolet retail sales (both cars and trucks) over the twelve months ending August 2008; and (2) Mustang registrations for the twelve months ending June 2008 in your DMA. The guide covers anticipated Camaro Coupe production from the start of regular production, currently scheduled for mid-February through approximately Q3 2009. Questions on individual guide numbers should be directed to your District Sales Manager. As always with a vehicle launch, these guide figures are not an assurance as to future production, but are issued to you only for planning purposes. Given the vagaries of scheduling production and the possibility of subsequently developing constraints or other business factors, we cannot make any firm commitments at this early stage.

Only bona fide sold customer orders with complete information (including customer's name and full address) will be accepted by General Motors. Consumers making inquiries on the status of their sold orders will be instructed that the dealer has received a production guide number, and will be directed back to their dealer for further information on their order.

The ability to submit bona fide sold customer orders well in front of the start of production is a unique opportunity to strengthen relationships with existing customers and establish a bond with new customers. Be sure to visit Chevylaunch.com for details on the Early Order Program and stay tuned throughout the program duration for any important updates.
